Piano keyboard recommendations

Many students and their families ask about which piano/keyboard they should purchase to continue practice at home. While it is great to get a traditional piano, many student's homes don't have the space for it, traditional pianos need more maintenance like tuning every 6 months, and they are heavy to move! A great alternative is a newer model of keyboard which should include the following qualities: 88 keys, weighted keys that feel like a regular piano, and the option to add a sustain pedal.

A keyboard is much more versatile in that almost all will have a headphone jack to play in silence, are much easier to move, and some will actually let you record your song on it too!

We have three recommendations on the following pages for keyboards that you can find on Amazon, with a clickable link that will bring you right to the item. Keep in mind that if the package you are buying doesn't include a bench or stand, that would be an additional cost but those items are easy to find and we have added those at the end of this guide. We have many different models in our studio and you can feel free to try them out to see which one works well for you too.

Note: Any links that you click on in this document do not provide us any monetary incentive. We are just glad to help our students!
